Factoring is the process of changing a polynomial expression that is essentially a sum into an expression that is essentially a product.

We first must learn how to convert that product into a sum to find a pattern