

We really have to stop making math difficult to learn & that includes

Problem Solving/Word Problems

As with naked math we introduce, we either develop concepts or link them to prior learning or experiences so students are more comfortable using simple straight forward examples that work, that clarify to ensure they are learning the concept or skill not being distracted by needless arithmetic and finally scaffold to other number sets and variations